A public house called The Nag's Head has occupied 10 James Street since at least the 1670s. The current building is an example of Neo-Jacobean pub architecture (P. E. Pilditch) and was erected in 1900 being one of the 30 plus listed buildings in the Covent Garden area. McMullen & Sons, a family Brewer purchased The Nag's Head in 1927 for then the princely sum of £7,525 GBP – God bless the London property market!
